Hello, my name is Dan Segal

I am a third year Computer Science BS student at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio and I'm expecting to graduate in May 2014. Weclome to my site, please feel free to take a look around and contact me if you would like to discuss anything further.

I have interned both as a member of an IT group at Johns Hopkins Hospital, and a web developer at Vigilant Medical, a health and technology startup in Baltimore, MD. My main interest recently has been web development, and I look forward to improving my skills with it.

In addition to my academic and technical pursuits, I am also an avid photographer and videographer. I am frequently working on either a personal project, or freelance work for one of several groups on campus.
